Part B. CV SUMMARY (max. 5000 characters, including spaces)

Our university education starts with the Degree in Hispanic Philology and the Degree in Catalan Philology. In both cases, we graduated from the Universitat de València with the highest mark. The master thesis we conducted after the Research Degree in Philology was also unanimously marked with the best grade (A). Simultaneously, we studied for a doctorate at the Universitat de València (1985-1986), and in February 1991, we earned our PhD, with a Cum Laude grade. This research was awarded, additionally, the Premio Extraordinario de Doctorado (1992).

We started our university teaching career as a staff teacher (1-12-1985), through a public competition based on merits. Later, we obtained the post of Head Lecturer of University School through a public examination process (30-09-1987). According to our research and teaching career, in 1994 we applied for a position switch, and that very same year the Council of Universities granted the transference to the Department of Didàctica de la Llengua i la Literatura. In October 1997, we passed the public examination for the Head Lecturer of University School position. In 2009 we were certified as University Professor by ANECA and on October 13, 2010, we passed the public examination for the University Professor post at the Universitat de València. Our constant reflection and active research around methodologies, scopes and appropriate resources for the linguistic, media and literary education motivated different teaching and research stays (Cambridge, Salamanca, Reggio Emilia (Italia), Trencin (Slovakian Republic) Braga and Oporto (Portugal); Recife, Maceió, Natale (Brazil) or Mexico D. F.). Their most direct consequence took form in several investigations and projects. All this industrious educational research activity has offered quality results in the area of knowledge, expressed through different research projects, rigorous scientific publications in all forms, from books, book chapters, papers for relevant journals in this field, entries in this sphere reference dictionaries, as well as talks and lectures in international congresses, conferences, seminars and courses. All in all, the research activity has been the consequence of intense work, whose quality has been acknowledged by granting 36 years of research by the CNEAI.

Moreover, both facets of our career, teaching and research, have been completed with different research and academic management positions, such as the management of the Department of Didàctica de la Llengua i la Literatura (1997-2000), or the leadership of the "Educación Literaria, Lingüística, Cultura y Sociedad" (ELCiS) research group, which currently comprises 25 researchers and teachers and has been assigned several competitive projects. We are part of the Academic and Doctoral Commission for the Master in Investigación de Didácticas Específicas and belong to the Academic Commission of the Master in Secondary Education Teaching of the Universitat de València. At the moment, we chair the Direction Board of the Sociedad Española de Didáctica de la Lengua y la Literatura (SEDLL), a prominent research organization in our field, as well as take part in different editorial and scientific committees. Editor in chief of the scientific journal Lenguaje y Textos, a 30-year-old prestigious publication in the area of Language Teaching. We have directed 17 PhD theses in the last ten years.
